the play, while it cannot be ranked in the list of truly great dramas, is at all times natural, delightfully humorous and the interesting third act, suggres-tive alike of "For-get-Me-Not" and "Diplomacy," presents a scene thrilling enough for the tastes of any lover of melo drama.

The commanding general in charge of "The Man from Home" forces is the veteran Robert Brower, who has been coming to Sait Lake for more than a generation past. He was here most frequently at the head of the Kirke La-Shelle attractions, especially with the "Bonnie Brier Bush" company, and is Shelle attractions, especially with the "Bonnie Brier Bush" company, and is an intimate friend of Bob Easton and wife. Mr. Brower knows every detail of the theatrical business, back of the curtain as well as in the box office; when he reached Salt Lake yesterday and found that the stage which must accommodate his 40-foot, drops, was only 30 feet wide, his stage carpenter threw up his hands in despair and said the big and handsome Bay of Naples scene simply could not be put in place, whereupon Mr. Brower took off his coat, picked up a saw and cut the framework whereupon Mr. Brower took off his coat, picked up a saw and cut the framework of the drop down to the required size, making a cyclorama effect of the rear drop. In other respects the scenery was made to fit the Shubert stage quite effectively.
